FOREWORD

We have endeavored to embody in this volume some of the finer aims and ideals, activities and achievements, of the college year 1933-1934. In working toward this goal we have tried to choose material which will reflect some of the beauty and personality of our academic, campus, and social life.

If we have been able by these reviews of the year to add a few flowers to your bouquet of college memories and to give it enduring life, so that you will find the odor still fragrant in the many years to come, then we feel as though the 1934 Junior Aggie has achieved its purpose.

DEDICATION

We feel a grateful pleasure in dedicating the 1934 Junior Aggie to a man who has been highly instrumental in the continuous growth and advancement of our school; who has served the student body of this and past years most faithfully; who has set aside personal whims and enjoyments in order that a solid group of educational ideals could be preserved within these portals—Mr. D. A. Bickel.

T. O. WALTON

President of A. & M. System

Ahead of the young men and women of North Texas Agricultural College who this year are completing their course of study, as before all who are leaving the portals of educational institutions, lies a highway of infinite possibilities. It is the highroad of life, of adventure, of romance, of hard realities, of glorious peaks of attainment, of bottomless caverns of failure.

For those who are of dauntless spirit and proper equipment, the high peaks beckon at the journey's end. For those who are afraid and ill prepared, heartache and failure lurk along the way.

Let me urge upon you who are ready to set foot upon this luring yet perilous road, that you keep your hearts stout, your eyes eager, and that you neglect not as you journey to see that your equipment is always ample and in shape. No traveler can start a long journey fully prepared to meet every emergency that may come along the way. He must learn many things as he goes.

So it is in life's journey. Completion of a college course does not mean complete education. It is only a beginning. Just as trail breakers must study each day the problems of the route opening before them, so must he who journeys in life keep abreast of life's affairs and problems.

You who are leaving your college studies behind, do not forget there are many things yet ahead to learn. Hence remember the past, act in the present, and think of the future.

T. O. WALTON, President.

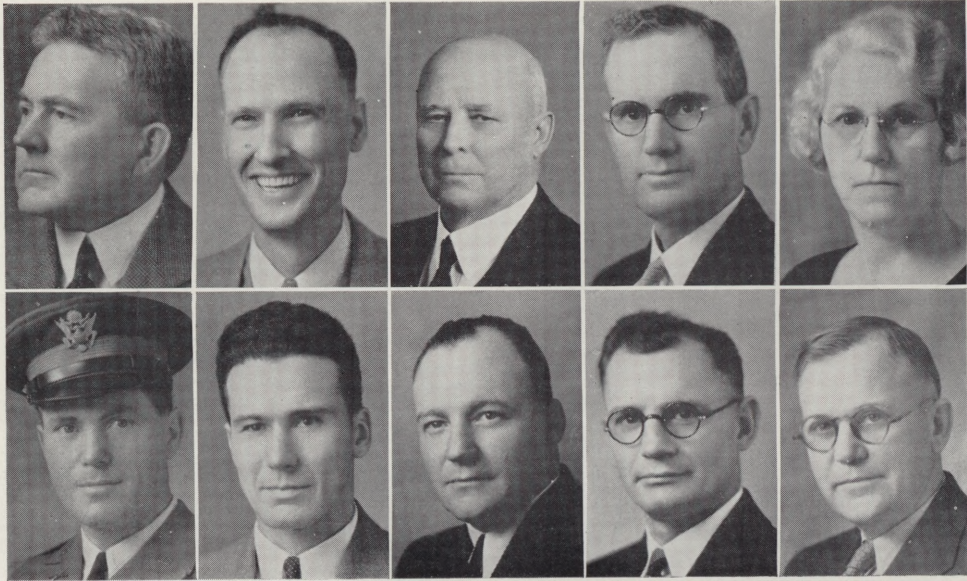

E. E. DAVIS

Dean of College

The Past, Present, and Future of N. T. A. C.

The past of N. T. A. C. has been that of a young institution, atuned to the voice and call of a new day in human affairs. Organized society has arrived at one of the sharpest turning points in all the course of human events. We are now in the very maelstrom of a terrific social and economic re-appraisal. The bloodless battles of the world's greatest revolution are on. May the fires of passion be kept under control and the guiding light of clear-eyed intelligence direct our course. Henceforth, N. T. A. C. must direct its very life and soul to the sacred cause of justice embodied in a new and better social order.

E. E. DAVIS, Dean.

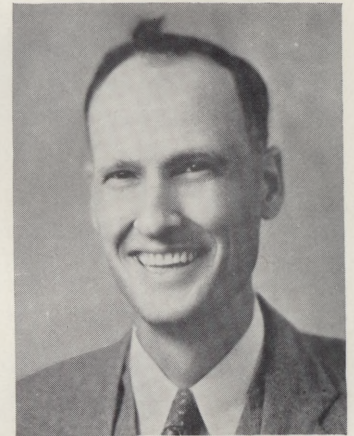

Executive Committee

Davis, E. E., Chairman; Dickey, George L.; Bickel, D. A.; Hudspeth, J. E.; Lipscomb, Ina; Joyce, Thomas F.; Hughes, W. L.; Lynch, S. A.; Ransom, W. A.; Stone, M. C.

Never before in our lives have we seen so much examination of the past in search of a satisfactory explanation of the present state of affairs. Never before has any of us so cautiously studied every contemplated movement of the immediate present before proceeding. More of us are earnestly striving to project ourselves into the future hoping to erect guideposts which will direct us to some definite human goal. All of this care and energy we are expending should have significance for our generation and all subsequent ones.

How well we discharge our duties to organized society will be determined by the thoroughness of our preparation. It behoves each of us to study the happenings of the past and those of the present to improve our judgment effectively; to map out the future with earnestness of purpose to avoid mistakes. We must keep our minds open to new ideas, our reasoning faculties must be active, and our senses must be in a constant state of expectancy.

Ina Lipscomb
Dean of Women

The year 1933-34 with its many dreams, some of which reached happy fruition, will soon belong to the irrevocable past.

Profiting by your inheritance you have made the present North Texas Agricultural College richer and fuller than did the students of earlier years.

Because of your fine loyalty and earnest efforts, the classes of the future will reach even greater achievements.

May all your worthwhile dreams come true, but may you keep your dreaming in the midst of disappointments, and like Merlin continue to "follow the Gleam."

THE EDUCATOR'S PART

Our entire educational system is confronted, so far as the male population is concerned, with the problem of changing pupils into men. We receive these pupils in the adolescent, formative period of their lives, when they are meeting for the first time the problems of social, economic and ethical behavior. Our responsibility becomes greater, due to the fact that we are passing through not only a period of economic stress and strain but also a period of social misunderstanding and moral instability.

We should strive to instill in our charges the fact that anything gained at the expense of character is a total loss. We can base this statement on a recent survey of 80 national concerns employing 50,000 white workers which revealed the fact that there is an average turnover of about 8 per cent among the workers of these concerns. Approximately 4,000 were discharged yearly; and, of this number, 90 per cent were removed from positions because of faulty character traits, while only 10 per cent were dropped for lack of skill.

Though this condition has existed in the past due to lack of knowledge of the outgoing college student, it should be the sole purpose of the modern educators to rid society of this curse. By giving the student a sound group of educational and social fundamentals with which to work in his future activities we may hope to achieve this purpose, and only by these methods may we realize our desire to do such.

Thomas F. Joyce
Commandant of Cadets

Nope, it's the Regimental Staff.

6. When we paraded on the quadrangle.

7. "Our" Regimental adjutant.

8. The Second Battalion.

Athletics

Dunsworth, H. D. A.; Giesecke, Minnie; Preston, Joe B.

E. W. Lambert, Head Coach

With E. W. Lambert, former all-southwestern conference end and captain of one of Arkansas University's miracle basket ball teams, as head coach and a squad of over sixty candidates, the North Texas Aggies had a moderately successful gridiron season.

Coach Lambert came to N. T. A. C. from Taylor, Texas, where he was successful in turning out several winning teams both in football and basket ball. Coach Lambert as an EXPONENT of the Warner system showed Aggie fans an entirely new set of tactics, featuring at the proper time an aerial attack.

YELL LEADERS

With the yell staff being made up of some of the leading personalities in school, the Aggie rooters had ample leadership at all athletic events.

We congratulate all of them on their "swell" Aggie spirit and especially on their tireless efforts to keep up "the chatter" throughout the season.

J. W. Jacobs proved to be a capable and well liked head cheer-leader and because of the splendid cooperation he received from the other staff members, the yell staff of 1933-34 proved to be a most popular and successful one.

Football

The Aggies won four games during the season. They defeated the Simmons University Frosh 18-0, won over the Denton Teachers freshmen by a 14-0 count, took the Texas University "B" team to a close 6-0 trimming and upset the Ranger College eleven by a 7-0 score.

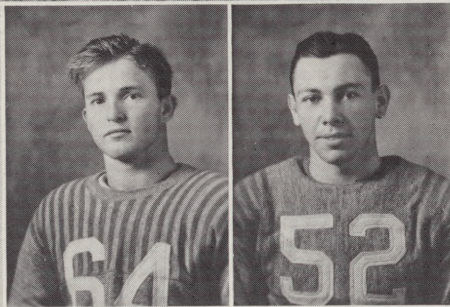

Two losses, one to Weatherford Junior College in the first conference game of the season by a 12-7 count and the other to the Decatur Baptist Indians 13-2, and four ties made up the remaining games. The Aggies played a neck and neck game with the S. M. U. freshman team 19-19, an even game with Texas Military College 6-6, a tie with the Paris Junior College team 0-0, and a final nothing to nothing thriller with John Tarleton Agricultural College.

O'CONNOR, JOE

For backfield captain no one could have been chosen to do the job better than Joe O'Connor. The most sensational broken field running of the year and some of the cleverest play calling was done by Joe. This was O'Connor's second year and it is not likely that he will be back next season. O'Connor made the All-Conference team by a majority vote. His great punting ability was a powerful defensive factor.

SLAGLE, MELVIN

As Co-Captain with Joe O'Connor, Slagle kept his linesmen always ready for the play. He put plenty of fighting spirit into the boys throughout the game. Slagle played great ball at center and was a hard man to run a play through.

The Aggies made their initial appearance in an encounter with the Simmons University Freshman team at the Aggie field Saturday afternoon, September 30, before a crowd of over 600 fans. A cunning aerial attack won for the Aggies by an 18-0 score. "Brownie" Brown, star backfield ace, intercepted a short pass on the Simmons forty yard line and dashed down the sidelines for a sixty yard run and the first touchdown of the year. Another score in the same period was made by Wes Boyer who took C. W. Norton's pass on the Simmons 18 yard line and trotted across the goal for a second score. The Aggies scored again in the last quarter when a pass from C. W. Norton, former Stripling Hi Ace, to Emmett Sims, right wing, was taken across the line for a counter. Johnny Blaine and C. B. Lyne at the guards posts were outstanding. Jackson at end broke up a number of Simmons' power plays.

After leading the Weatherford Junior College Coyotes by seven points through the first quarter, the Coyotes broke loose and chalked up two touchdowns to win the first conference game of the year by a 12-7 score. The game was played at the new Aggie field before a crowd of 300 people Friday afternoon, October 6. The Aggies scored their only touchdown in the first quarter,

BLAINE, JOHN

Johnny was the outstanding line player of the season. He was an all-state man from Hi-Park, Dallas, and this year made the All-Central Texas Conference team. Blaine showed up well, making tackles which often set back the opposing team many yards.

BOYER, WESLEY

Boyer is the Captain-elect for the 1934 season. As a freshman this year he made the regular team and was the hardest driving backfield man that the Aggies had. Wes was a good ground gainer and an accurate passer. We feel sure that Boyer will do more than his part in putting out a sure winner for next year.

BROWN, ARTHUR

A three-year man in the backfield with years of high school football behind him. Brownie played practically every game of the season. He was a steady player, always doing his part of the ball lugging, and also a great deal of the defensive work. Brown has played his last year for N. T. A. C. and will be missed much.

CASWELL, ED

The husky Aggie man mountain was an outstanding factor on the N. T. A. C. forward wall. Caswell had brains as well as brawn and used them in breaking up many tricky enemy plays.

COFFMAN, HAROLD

After lettering his first year, Coffman played like a veteran and was a great help in winning many games.

CURIK, WILLIE

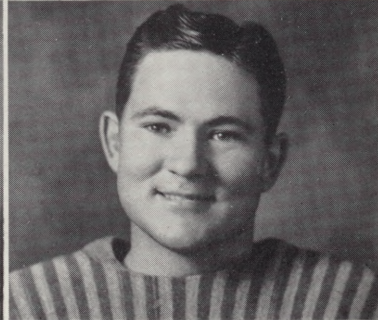

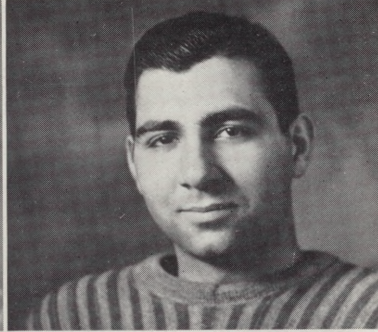

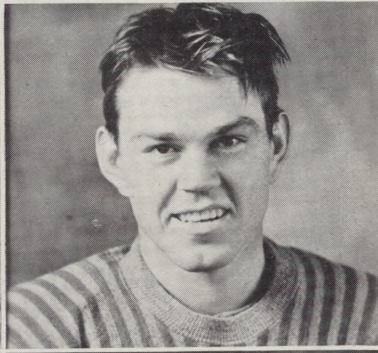

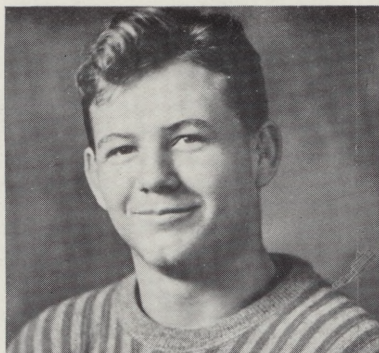

Curik was an outstanding line player, and ranked among the best in the Conference. He was a hard driving blocker, and his many tackles kept the opponent on the defensive.

CURRIE, TOM

One of the fastest men on the Aggie eleven was Currie. His speed and cool headedness helped the Ags out of several scrapes. Currie is a frosh and may be back for another year on the gridiron.

DODSON, DEBIE

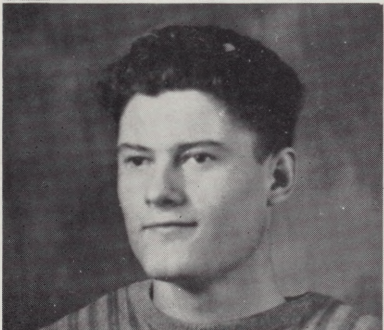

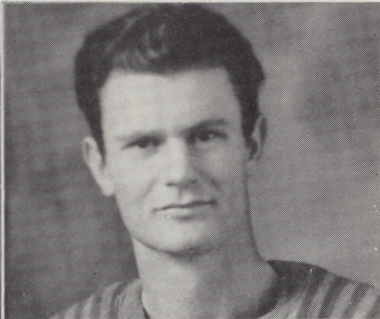

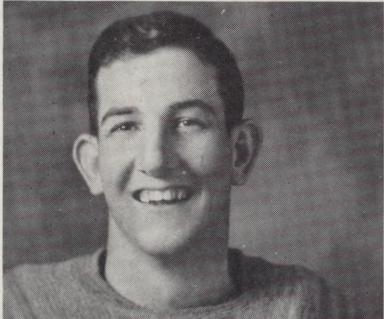

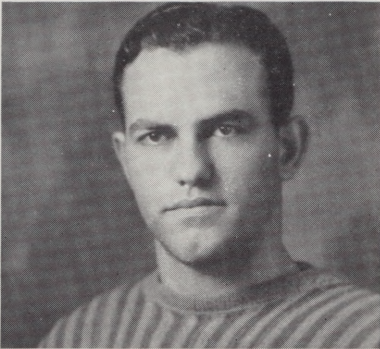

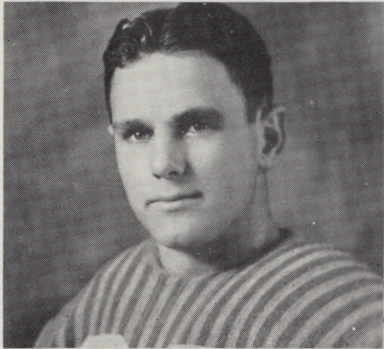

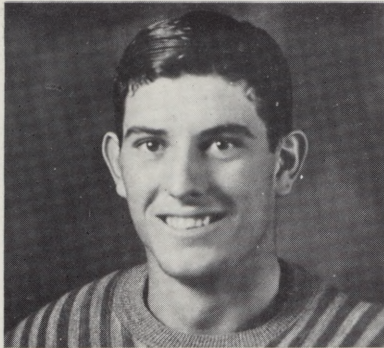

Dodson carried the leather very few times but accounted for many yards with his powerful blocking. Dodson, a freshman, will be back next year and will be an outstanding factor in making the Aggie team a winning one.

when Joe O'Connor raced around left end by a strong boring interference and scored the first touchdown of the game. Norton kicked the extra point. The last six Weatherford points were made in the last half. Caswell and Svadlenak, however, blocked the try for the point.

On Fair Day the Aggies played Jimmy Stewart's S. M. U. Colts to a 19-19 tie at the Fair Park Bowl before several hundred fans of S. M. U. and N. T. A. C. With defeat staring them in the face, Captain Joe O'Connor, of the Aggies, took the ball on a sweeping end run for a thirty-five yard gain and a touchdown which put the Aggies only a point behind the Frosh. C. W. Norton, place-kick artist, sent the leather flying between the bars for the tying point.

The second conference game was played with the Texas Military College eleven at the Terrell Oval Monday night, October 16. Over 500 Aggie fans made the trip. The Aggies played gamely through four quarters for a 6-6 tie. Punting was a strong factor in deciding the play. Tom Currie and Joe O'Connor did some brilliant toe work for the Ags. Finally getting a break in the last stanza, Brownie Brown took the ball from center, and passed to Jackson, who made the tying touchdown.

HULL, JOE

Playing at tackle most of the season, Hull turned out to be one of the hardest tackling men on the team. He saved the Aggies from defeat several times and will be needed on next year's eleven.

HUNTER, EARL

Playing his second year in the Aggie backfield, Earl Hunter played a fine brand of ball throughout the season. Hunter was an exceedingly good place kicker and passer.

JACKSON, NOLAN

Although short in stature, Jackson held down the wing position with ease. His quick thinking and brilliant running did much to aid the Aggies throughout the season. He was a good blocker and tackler.

LYNE, C. B.

Playing his second season on the Aggie guard post, C. B. Lyne showed up so well that he was elected line captain for the 1934 football campaign. Lyne fought hard and was a hard hitting, hard blocking line player.

McCARTY, MONROE

After starting late in the season, McCarty soon won a place for himself on the team. It was his fleet feet and clever ball lugging that made great gains in several tilts.

MILLER, CURTIS

Miller played end the whole season and made many yards on pass catches for the Aggies. His fast running and quick thinking helped him out in holding down the end post. Miller will likely be back for another year with the Ags.

MOBLEY, GEORGE

Mobley helped out as a substitute and was a star player on the "B" team. He was the star of the "cannonfodder" and helped them out with scores to keep an undefeated record.

MULLEN, BILL

Bill played on the line for his second year with the Aggies. He was a ferocious tackler and good at knocking down enemy forward passes. Bill was a fighter all the way.

In a non-conference tilt the Aggies played the Paris Junior College team to a thrilling 0-0 tie at the Aggie field before one of the largest crowds ever to witness a game in Arlington. The game was played Friday afternoon, October 20. In the second period O'Connor made several nice gains with his line jumping trick while Boyer and Brown plowed the line, but this was not quite enough to score. Co-captain Slagle, Johnny Blaine, Ed Terrill and Joe Hull kept the Dragons from gaining on line plays. Hull, Slagle, Phythian, Dodson, Currie and Blaine showed up well for the Aggies.

The Aggie gridsters won an easy 14-0 victory over the Denton Teachers, Friday night, October 27, at the Denton arena before a large crowd of Ag and Denton fans. Touchdowns by Wesley Boyer were the main feature of the game with a pass from Brown to Miller being another outstanding play. Brown, Dodson, O'Connor, Blaine, Phythian, Caswell, Simms, and Slagle all played well.

Playing on a heavy Arlington gridiron the Ags won a close 6-0 tilt over the University of Texas "B" team November 3rd. With the ball in Texas' possession, Wetzell, Longhorn back, tossed a short pass just over the line of scrimmage, which was scooped up by Boyer for a 25 yard run and the single score of the game.

NORTON, C. W.

The former Stripling High ace made a place for himself this year as one of the cleverest backs N. T. A. C. has had in quite a while. Norton was instrumental in many Aggie victories and his passing and running will be needed next season.

PHYTHIAN, FEEBIE

Playing part time on guard and part at center, Phythian is credited with having broken up more than his share of offensive plays. He was quick to cover fumbles and intercepted many passes during the year.

SIMS, EMMETT

Sims, a freshman from Arlington, made the team and played the end position off and on during the season. Although making only one touchdown the whole year, he was an excellent defensive wing man. He will be back next year.

SMITH, BOB

Smith played the latter part of the season at end. His height and long arms were needed in cutting down many zone passes. Smith is a fighter and a man that can "take it" in any amount.

SVADLENAK, ALFRED

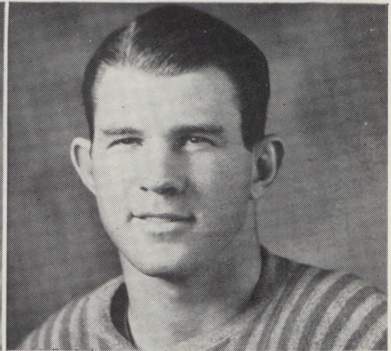

Al, a freshman, played some good football and stayed out all the year. Although he failed to letter he was a great help as a sub and will be ready to take a regular place on next year's eleven.

SVADLENAK, TOM

As a frosh linesman Svadlenak won his letter and played in most of the conference games. Tom will be back for another year of football and will be needed to help give us a champion team.

WAGERS, G. W.

Substituting at the center position and playing regular in many games, Wagers won his letter. His passing from center and hard driving blocks helped the Aggies out of several tight places. Wagers is a frosh and will be needed at center for the coming year.

In another Central Texas Conference tussle, the Aggies lost a tough game to the Decatur Baptist Indians by a 13-2 score at the Decatur field on Armistice night. The Aggies drew first blood in the early seconds of the game when Phythian, powerful Aggie guard, barged through the line and blocked an attempted punt for a two point counter. Runs by Boyer, O'Connor, and Wolfe brought the Aggies long gains.

With approximately 3,500 Aggie-Tarleton football fans cheering for a touchdown, the North Texas Aggie eleven played the John Tarleton Plowboys to a nothing to nothing deadlock at the Aggie field, Thanksgiving Day afternoon. The Aggies entered the field a slight favorite over the Plowboys and lived up to the odds by outplaying the visitors for four sensational quarters. Although the Aggies made fifteen first downs to the Plowboys' two, they were unable to cross the goal line for a counter. The Aggies found their best chance to score early in the last period when Hunter's field goal was low. This ended the Aggie threat and their chance to take the game. The outstanding players for the Aggies were McCarty, Blaine, Phythian, Hull, and Lyne. In the backfield Wolf, Dodson, O'Connor, and Boyer starred.

Exciting Moments!

1. Wolfe making a perfect stiff-arm.

2. O'Connor gains through center.

3. Blaine making a tackle throwing J. T. A. C. for a 15 yard loss.

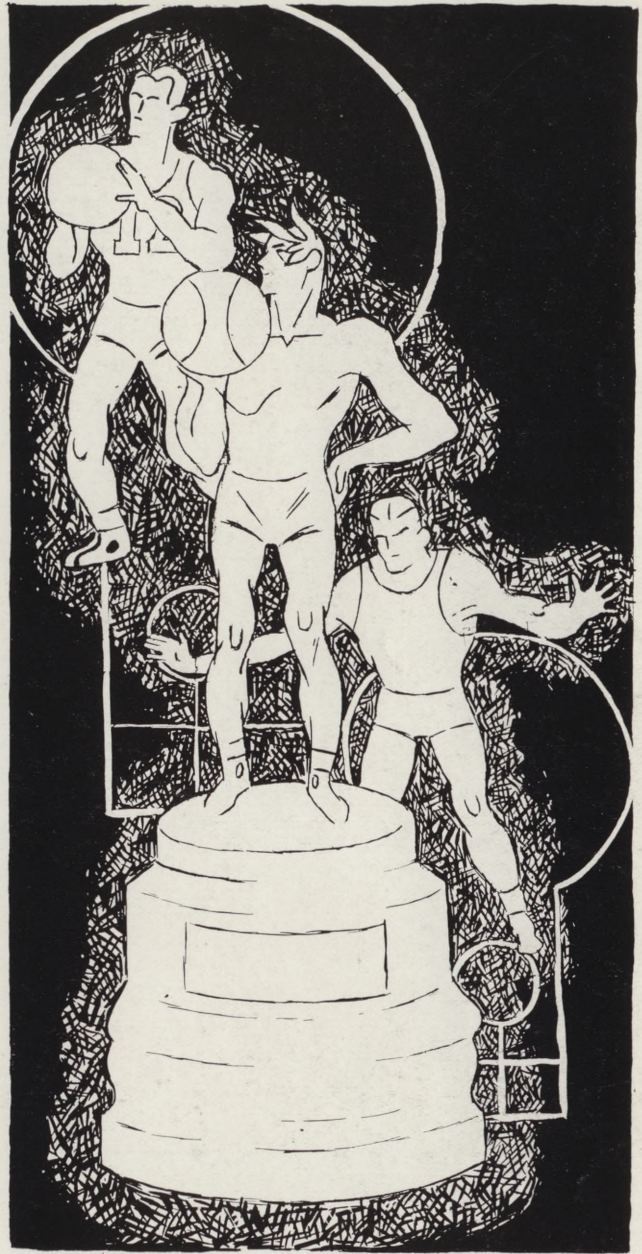

4. A touchdown was in sight as O'Connor came around end in the Thanksgiving game.

5. Norton's pass to Hunter (completed) for a touchdown against Paris.

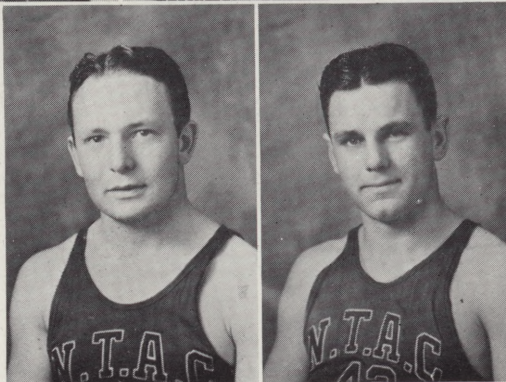

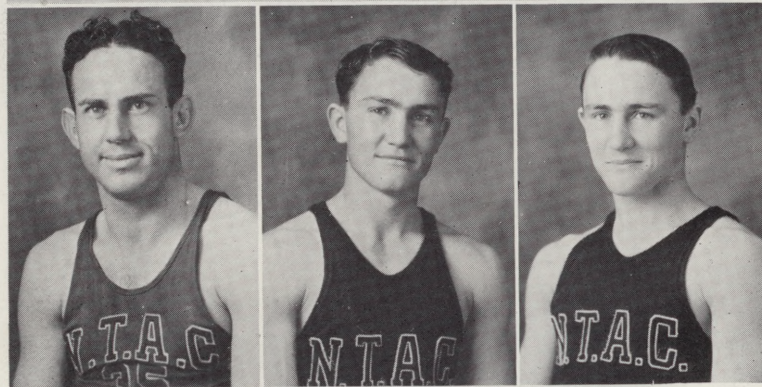

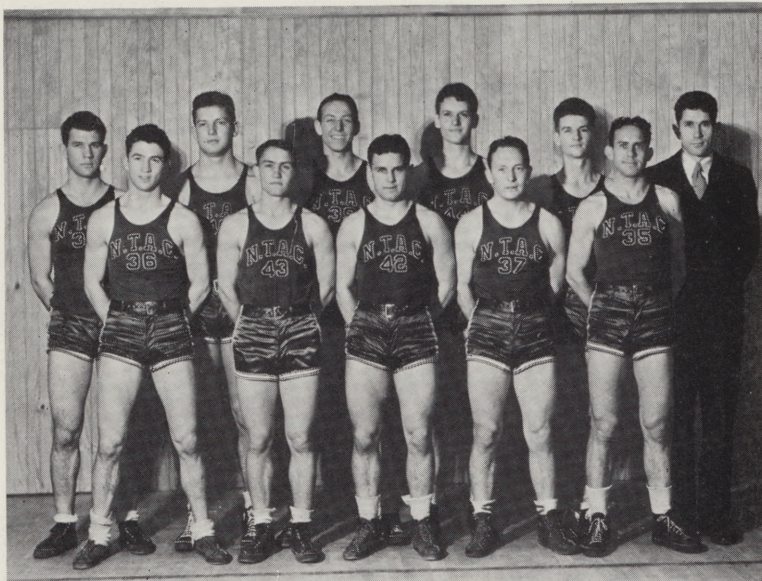

6. McCarty being tackled over the goal after catching a pass in the S. M. U. Fish game.

7. Hunter blocking the secondary letting O'Connor through.

8. Currie getting off a long punt in the J. T. A. C. game.

Basketball

N. T. A. C. pulled through the 1933-4 basketball season with a fairly successful record. The Aggies dropped four games and won eight. They lost two affairs to John Tarleton Agricultural College and two more to the Decatur Baptist Indians.

Coach E. W. Lambert had good prospects from several crack Fort Worth and Dallas high school teams. Tom and Robert Laney of W. C. Strippling, C. W. Norton of Strippling and Max Campbell were some of the outstanding candidates from Fort Worth. Razz Barlow also of Fort Worth was counted on to take the forward position. Nolan Jackson of Henrietta was another good candidate.

BARLOW, RAZZ

Barlow played a brand of basketball this season that easily ranks him among our greatest N. T. A. C. forwards. He was an outstanding floor man and his long shots and crisp shots seldom touched the rim. Barlow was a good fighter and kept high spirits in the team at all times.

ELDER, JAMES

Playing on the second team and doing a great deal of substitute work on the first team, James Elder played a great deal in several conference games. He played a consistent game. He was a good ball passer and excellent on the defense.

ELDER, JOSEPH

Playing on the second team and subbing for the main team made a first class basketball player out of Joseph Elder. Joseph will probably be back next year and will win a regular berth on the team.

HUNTER, EARL

Playing his second year under the Blue and White, Earl Hunter played well at forward. The most outstanding point in his play was the way in which he made long shots. Hunter usually made two or three long ones out near the center of the floor. He was a good defensive man.

JACKSON, NOLAN

After subbing for a couple of games, Jackson finally caught his stride and proved a sensation with his accurate passing and expert handling of the ball.

The Aggies lost their first game of the year to the Decatur Baptist five on January 19. After lagging by only two points at the end of the first half, the Aggies were unable to withstand a scoring attack by Breedlove and Roach. In the latter part of the game Barlow and Robert Laney sank several long shots and Earl Hunter dropped in two from outside the charity line. C. W. Norton played a good game for N. T. A. C.

Barlow of N. T. A. C. was high point man with 9 points.

In their first game with Ranger Junior College on January 25, the Aggies won handily by a score of 40 to 19. Barlow and Laney led the scoring campaign while Smith played well at center. Barlow looped 18 points.

Playing at the Aggie gym on February 2, N. T. A. C. won over the Texas Military College team by a score of 40 to 24. Wofford was high point man with 12 markers to his credit.

The Aggies took Hillsboro for two trimmings, the first at the local gym by a 36 to 34 count and the second at Hillsboro by 41 to 37. In the first encounter Hillsboro led through most of the last half by a strong 13 point advantage. However, in the last few minutes of play, the Aggies, led by Barlow, Laney, Jackson, and Pythian, sunk enough points to take the contest. The second game was easier for the Aggies, who won by four points. Wofford and Robert Laney tied for high score with 12 points each. Jackson played a fine defensive game.

The last game with Ranger was played at Eastland. The Aggies again won, but they were given a hard fight, managing to

LANEY, ROBERT

One of the scoring aces of the year and a steady performer throughout was Robert Laney. As a freshman, Laney immediately made the team and was usually depended on to make his share of the shots, and he seldom disappointed.

LANEY, TOM

At guard the Aggies had a fine player in big Tom Laney. Tom played most of every game and his good guarding was an outstanding factor in many Aggie wins.

NORTON, C. W.

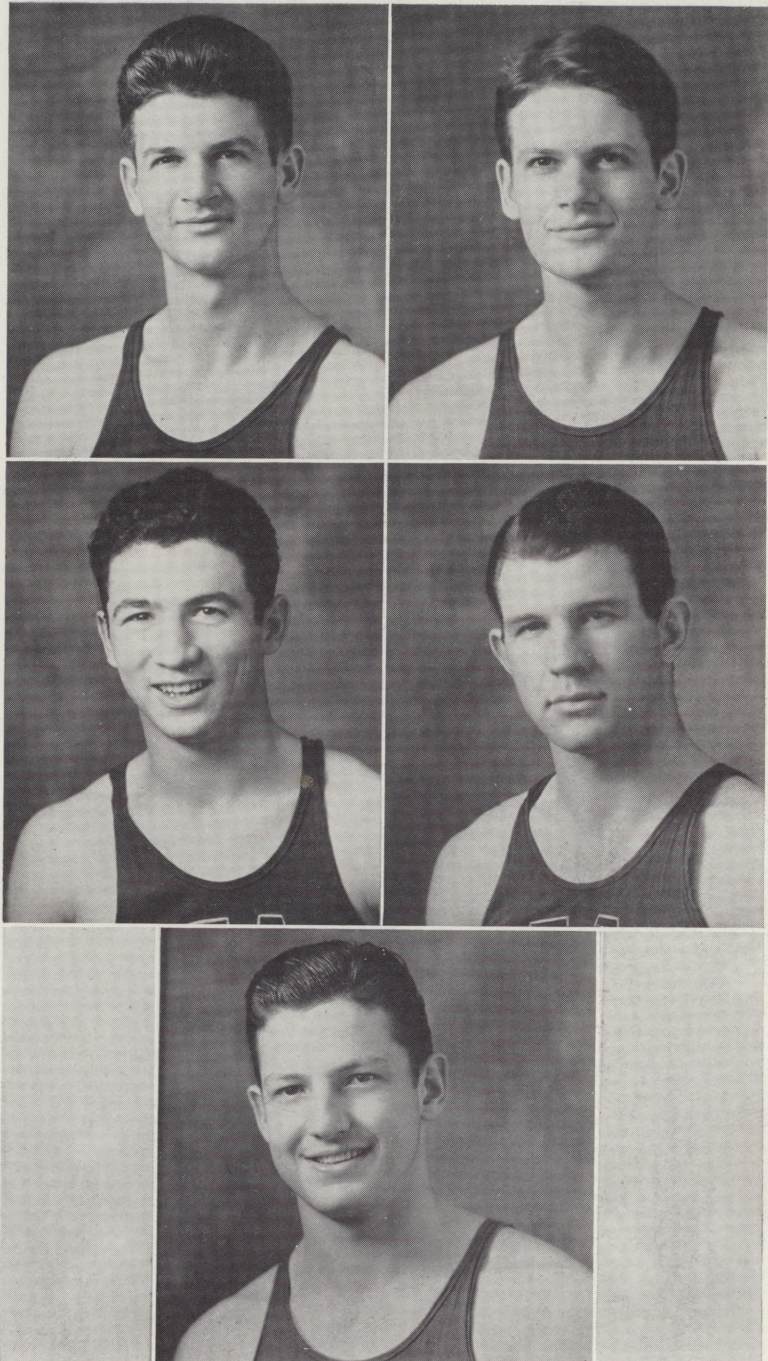

Another freshman product who made good on short notice. Norton played in nearly every conference game. He made a number of points but was usually best in passing or doing defensive work. He will be back next year and should win a regular place for himself on the team.

PHYTHIAN, FEEBIE

The Taylor boy who made such a good showing in football played enough games to win his basketball letter. Feebie played a consistent game; he was not sensational, but his quick thinking caught many flaws in the enemy defense which accounted for goals.

WOFFORD, J. D.

Wofford, a second year man at the pivot position, played good ball. He was high point man several times and was good at making rebound shots. His height aided him in getting the tipoff.

win by a score of 46 to 32. The Aggies led by 13 points at the half and were never seriously menaced by the Rangers.

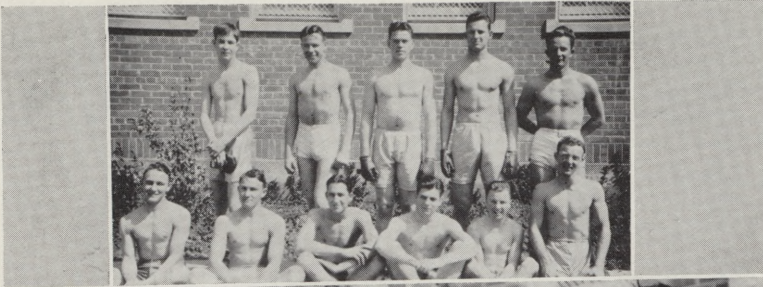

Tarleton, with an undefeated record behind them, entered the floor a strong favorite to win over N. T. A. C. in their first tilt on February 6 at Tarleton. The Plowboy champions worked true to form and won easily by a score of 44 to 14. The Tarleton team had a great advantage in height and that accounted for most of their points.

N. T. A. C. took two games from Weatherford Junior College. They won by a score of 44 to 26 in the first game. Barlow was high point man with 17 points. The second game was a practical duplicate of the first, with the Aggies taking an early lead and staying on top throughout the performance.

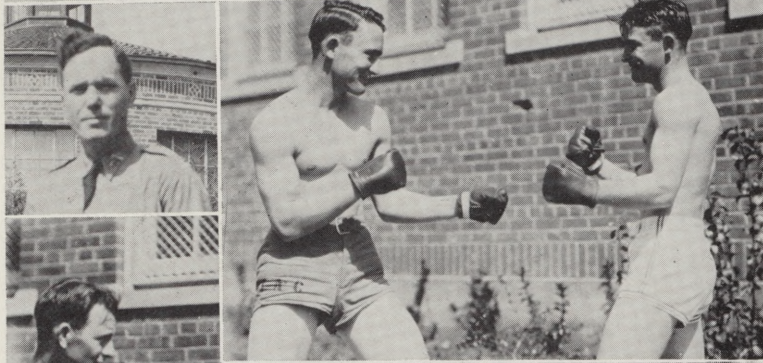

The last game lost to Decatur called for an extra period. The score being tied at the end of the regular period, the Aggies called on their best efforts to bring them out on top and managed to stay one point ahead up until the last second of the extra period. Blanton, a star guard, managed to slip through the defense and run in a crisp shot for the winning point.

Razz Barlow and Robert Laney were the outstanding performers of the entire season, both leading in points and also playing good defense game as well as on the offense. Jackson played steadily throughout the year, and his clever ball handling helped the Aggies in their offensive plays. Bob Smith, who was rather green during the early part of the season, soon reached top form and became a good man for jumping center and for making rebound shots. Those who received letters in basketball were: Barlow, Jackson, R. Laney, T. Laney, C. W. Norton, and Walter Phythian.

THE GRIND SECTION

A SONNET

Where editors are bold
And everything's told,
 That's what's in the grind section.
Where nothing's omitted
And everything's admitted,

EXTRACTS FROM LATEST MILITARY REGULATIONS

The following extract was taken from a recent book on Military Courtesy, by Reserve Captain U. Doitright, D. O. L. L., B. S., and P. T. (not retired yet), and may be considered as a reliable authority on any subject it may or may not cover. We need not say that the Captain has worked long and tediously in preparing this manuscript for the benefit of uninformed cadets and other enlisted men or privates. In this extract the Captain says in regard to the matter of military courtesies:

PART I

A. No soldier (officer) from the grade of buck up shall salute any but the following:

The Dean of Women.
All Horse Marine Officers (and corporals).

Non-commissioned orderlies.
All Registrars and their Secretaries.

Any Professor of Horseshoeing.
All Tailors of Mahatma Gandhi.
And all other civilians, cadets, matrons, and chaperons that may cause any unit not to be manly and military.

B. In addition salute the following persons:

Pedestrians in public conveyances.

Caretakers of Horticulture Lab.
Cadets from the grade of split corporal to Buck Private.

Socialist Agitators.
Red Russian Roughnecks.
Hoot Gibson (when uniformed).
Envoys from U. S. S. R., Inc.

PART II

If an officer shall enter a room in which privates are seated or otherwise resting, the privates shall immediately and curtly inquire as to his business. In case the interview shall last over a period of an hour or more, the officer may be allowed to seat himself, but must continue to be very respectful to his juniors or other inferiors. Upon leaving he shall ask to be excused. When excused, and then only, he may leave the room.

PART III

When in the presence of privates or non-commissioned officers, a commissioned officer may drink or smoke provided he first offers the bottle or case to everyone present. These rules and regulations as herein laid down shall be strictly observed.

PART IV

A private shall always accompany the hand salute with a graceful bow by placing the left hand behind the back and allowing the trunk (or suitcase) and assume the horizontal. Never salute an officer if he is more than two paces away; the man may recognize you. Always bring the hand down in three distinct counts so as to render the salute snappy and distinct. If you are in an automobile, bus, wagon, or other public conveyance, always make an attempt at hiding to prevent rendering the salute. When coming to attention, do so gradually, and thus eliminate the strain and tension which is the cause of many sprained backs and broken ankles. Always find an appropriate excuse for not saluting an officer. And above all things, let him know that you detest him and his shiny boots and straps.

PART V

All cadets shall be required to memorize the following terms from the new Standard Military Dictionary:

- A. D. E. M.—Darned Expert Mule Leader.
- B. D. O. L.—Dissipated Old Loun-gers.
- C. File—Men placed fore and aft.
- D. Deployment—Soldiers strung out a ways.
- E. Squad—Enlisted men's society unit.

- F. Platoon—Unfortunates com-manded by a dunce.
- G. Line—Unworthy, disgusted, ex-iled ex-Staff Officers.
- H. P. M. S. & T.—Pugilists, Mo-rons, Soldiers, and Truants.
- I. U. S. R O. T. C.—U Stay Right On This Campus.

Sweet young Miss Ann Christian entered the office of a fashionable dog kennel and tripped up to the handsome young man at the desk.

"I want a pet," she cooed.
"I'd love to," he answered, sadly,
"but the boss is mighty strict."

Grandmother had rheumatism and her little five-year-old grand-daughter decided to pray for warm weather in order to give grand-mother relief.

"Oh, Lord," she prayed, "please make it hot for grandmother."

"Do you see that young man standing over there next to the flivver with the golf pants on?"

"I see the young fellow, all right, but where is the flivver with the golf pants on?"

Little Jim Addison, fresh from an apartment house life in the big city, was spending a few weeks with his cousins on a farm. As they played around in the back lot, our young hero came suddenly upon an old box containing a lot of empty condensed milk cans.

"Hey, fellers," he called, "come here quick, I just found a cow's nest."

"Ah tells you', Jedge, Ah's innocent ob hittin' dat woman wid a flat-iron. She done hit husse'f."

"Hold on, now! Common sense tells us that a woman wouldn't hit herself with a flat-iron."

"Ah knows, Jedge. She didn't mean to hit husse'f. She done throwed de iron at me, but she fo'got it was an electric iron and de co'd swung it back."

A lady was called to the door of her home by a small lad.

"Does 'oo want to buy some tute little tittens?"

"I don't understand you."

"Does 'oo want some tittens?"

"Still I can't understand you."

"Does 'oo want a dam dood tat?"

General Inflammation

Location

North Texas Agricultural College, a cooking school for excess C. W. A. workers, is located somewhere on the campus, in the suburban districts of Arlington, about 2 (too far to walk) miles southwest of the town square.

History of the Institution

Once upon a time this institution was established. Now look at it—.

The College Farm

The college farm, located out in the country a ways, is the place where we have all picnics, and informal (??????) parties. Of course, there might be a stampede among the livestock out there some time, but so far no livestock has been killed in such an accident.

Chemistry Laboratories

The chemistry laboratory is very large and efficient. Almost the entire United States is furnished with perfumes made in this laboratory, the principal kinds being Coty's Hydrogen Sulfide, Rose Perfumes, and Perfumes de Aqua Regia.

Engineering Department

Training is carried on freely in this department. Each student has a "choo choo train" of his own, and it is required that each student practice so many hours a week.

Room and Board

Men and women may stay anywhere they wish just so it is in town. Boys are advised to stay as near to some light housekeeping girls as possible in order to be handy for dates with same.

Student Organizations

Various Clublets are organized from year to year for the purpose of carrying on an immense amount of social work, including the election of competent officers and the taking of a group picture.

Uniforms for Women

In selecting uniforms for women, the college authorities deserve commendation for creating an unusually high standard of appropriate costuming for all occasions at which the students will appear. Of course it is understood, however, that the wearing of all uniforms is optional on the part of the girls, since the faculty in charge of this division would never wish to appear so unreasonable as to make it compulsory. As the college girls take part in all the social activities of the modern little city in which they live, several different costumes had to be planned in order that the girls might have an appropriate dress for all occasions.

At the weekly Saturday night dances, held in the new gymnasium, all women students are required to wear the orange and purple checked suntan backed bathing suits with picture hats of horse-hair braid, and track shoes with guaranteed heavy, durable cleats.

For lyceums, street, and church wear, and other official occasions, girls are required to wear bright colored cretonne beach pajamas with enormous Mexican straw hats to protect the dear young things from the fierce light of publicity.

Although the greater part of the women students' time is spent in social activities, a part of their leisure time is spent in attending classes, a uniform had to be planned for these rare occasions. After much deliberation and heated argument, Miss Lipscomb won her point, and now the co-eds are wearing rainbow-colored bouffant chiffon evening dresses, sleeveless, needless to say! Miss Lipscomb insisted on enhancing the girlish figures by having them wear knee-high rubber boots with the school costume on rainy days.

Although the students feel that the actual conditions of uniform regulations are beyond censure, if any person can think of any improvement, that person may bring about these changes by obtaining Captain John Smith's signature on a petition to that effect.

Uniforms for Men

The dress uniform for men will consist of one crushable visca straw hat, light colored golf panties, one pink georgette shirt, one orchid chiffon tie, crushed into a dainty bow at the neck, several pairs of anklets (any sweet pastel shade), one pair of ballet slippers, and a flowing scarf of sheer chiffon to protect the tender necks of the cadets.

FACULTY MEMBERS GIVE TALKS OVER THE RADIO

Three of our prominent faculty members were recently asked to speak over different radio stations with the same wave length at the same hour. A group of students and associate professors gathered at the Exchange Store (in this story the exchange store has a radio) and heard the following heterogeneous medley of scientific nomenclature condensed from the ether as a product of a lecture on Bacteria by Professor W. L. Hughes, B. V. D.; an oration on Phosphorus, by Professor Charley McDonald, H₂O, H₂S; and a methodical discourse on cookery by Mrs. (I burnt the toast) Love.

Phosphorus occurs in three allotropic dainty dishes, Rhizopus negricans, microbacterium Tuberculosis, Lacto bacillus vermiform. The organism that causes slimy fermentation in the yolks of two eggs is the chief ingredient of commercial phosphates derived from buttermilk in chocolate pudding. Another favorite dish found in the diets of the best American families is mixed with crushed charcoal or coke and dried and eaten with bacterium zooglea, found in sewage. The most appropriate beverage with which to accompany this type of formal dinner is slimy milk saturated with carbon disulfide and served in capsules and sheaths of bacilli with equatorial swollen spores. It takes fire spontaneously and produces a sporangium on each terminal, constituted by Chicken a La King, dilute sulfuric acid, Parker House Rolls and phosphorus anhydride flavored with Hydrogen Sulfide. At this stage, Bacilli saccharobutyricus fluorescens liquefaciens immobilis are produced by vegetative reproduction and coffee is served by the butler while the micrococci of goat's milk distills over into the light wine, which is served with phosphoric anhydride and brick ice cream topped with the mucous membrane from the spleen of a dog with contagious distemper. Though never found free in nature, it is sometimes mixed with mucilaginous green molds on banana pudding, which when served with eggs a la golden rod and phosphates of the alkali metals, produces a virulent bacilli causing cholerial putrefaction in the intestinal tracts of guinea pigs, rabbits, and white mice. Fried squash, though insoluble in aqua regia, when treated with nutriment broth and agar in the presence of a gas exuded from tubercular expectorations produces a blood serum containing bacillus diphtherial and a red pent-oxide—

At this point in the contaminated oracular eruptions, the radio, which was, after all, only a man-made machine, collapsed beneath the ordeal, and upon cross-examination it was found that the platinum condenser plates had been converted into a liquid state, thereby breaking the flow of the ethereal current to the transformer posts.

Senior: "Will you freshmen stop making so much noise—I can't even read."

Fresh Frosh: "Well, don't blame us for your ignorance."

1st He: "It pains me every time I reach down to my knees with my hands."

2nd He: "Why do you do it, then?"

1st He: "Do you know any other way I can get my pants on?"

"Feed a cold and starve a fever," says a doctor.

What we would like to know is why every girl we take out has a cold instead of a fever?

"Mamma."

"Yes, darling."

"Mamma, daddy isn't like other men, is he?"

"Why, what do you mean?"

"Because he just got tired waiting for the elevator, and went down the shaft without one."

Criticized for addressing his employer as "Mr. Arrison," an East-End Londoner remarked: "Well, if a h'aitch, and a h'ay, two h'ars, and a h'i, a h'ess, a h'o and a h'en don't spell 'Arrison,' I don't know what does."

A Petition

To the Dean

Through the Associate Dean
Through the Commandant
Through the Dean of Women
Through the Faculty
Through the Officer of the Day
And through with it all.

Sir:

When in the course of human events it becomes necessary for North Texas Agricultural College, Arlington, County of Tarrant, Texas, to incur an additional activity, expense, or dignitary, it behooves us, the undersigned, being of infirm mind and in imperfect state of health to call to the attention and advertence of those in highest authority such need, necessity, or requirement. In view of the aforesaid conditions, we the undersigned, being the party of the first part, do humbly implore aforesaid authority, the party of the second part, to weigh and consider aforesaid incurrence, and to endeavor, in spite of existent conditions, to realize the dire and pressing need of said alteration and reform in the administrative policies of the institution.

Such aforesaid exigency having convoked our consideration, we, the party of the first part, consider it our submissive and apparent duty and obligation to proclaim said circumstance to aforesaid official with the expectancy that it may admit of the continuous deliberation of the illustrious estimability of your highness.

In accordance with the aforesaid statements and opinions, we, the party of the first part, do diffidently solicit and supplicate that this apparently insignificant, though thoroughly significant, entreaty be accorded utmost deliberation.

This document of the party of the first part shall assume the conventional arrangement of a supplication to you, the party of the second part, to inform and advise Captain Thomas F. Joyce, P. M. S. & T.; or perhaps better known as the Commandant, of the lamentable penury of the institution in the absence of cadet officers.

Drawn up and testified to in my presence and in the presence of reliable witnesses upon this the thirtieth day of February in the year of our Lord, one thousand nine hundred and thirty-four.

(Signed) IMA LIAR,
Notary Public.

"My corn hurts me."
"Why don't you get better stuff?"

A.: "Do you want me to shoo these flies for you?"

B.: "No," whispered Mary in a sweet voice, "let them run around in their bare feet a while longer."

They laughed when I walked over to the piano—but they were right; I couldn't lift it.

He: "Isn't this dance floor swell?"

She: "Oh, have you used it?"

He: "My heart flames like a blazing fire!"

She: "Don't be a fuel."

Then there was the guy who had the dirty joke tattooed on his forehead—and was his face read?

There was a man who loved the beesies;
He was their very best friend;
He used to sit upon the hives,
But they stung him in the end.

J. D. Wofford:

"O, it is excellent to have a giant's strength, but it is tyrannous to use it like a giant."

Billie Weed:

"I was not always a woman of woe."

Virginia Leonard:

"Society is no comfort to one not sociable."

Any Officer of the Day:

"Thou hast been called, O Sleep the friend of Woe, but 'tis the happy who have called thee so."

Mr. Barnes (to economics class):

"Speech is great; but silence is greater."

Joe O'Connor (on addressing himself):

"Self-love is the greatest of all flatterers."

Mr. McMurtray:

"Science when well digested is nothing but good sense and reason."

James Caswell:

"Nothing endures but personal qualities."

Mr. Preston:

"Something is rotten in the state of Denmark!"

Captain Joyce:

"Hail to the chief who in triumph advances."

Harold Coffman:

"Could I love less, I should be happier now."

Jack Lake to Palmer Clark:

"Yet do I fear thy nature; it is too full o' the milk of human kindness."

The Joke Editor:

"A little nonsense now and then is relished by the wisest men."

All Band Members:

"Umble we are, 'umble we have been, 'umble we shall ever be."

Joy Barling:

"I awoke one morning and found myself famous."

J. T. Talkington:

"I am not in the roll of common men."

Clarence Darrow Sheffield:

"Ambition has no rest!"

Mr. Bickel:

"They say women and music should never be dated."

Timid old lady at her first football game: "Oh, isn't it awful? Why, they will kill that poor boy underneath."

Co-ed: "Don't be silly; he doesn't mind it—he's unconscious by this time."

Pug Sluggum, on trial for murder, bribed an Irishman of the jury, in the amount of $100.00, to hold out for a verdict of manslaughter. After being out a long time the jury came back into the court with the desired verdict. Pug managed to get near the Irishman and said: 'I'm mighty obliged to you. Did you have a hard time?' "Yes," replied the Irishman, "a devil of a hard time. All the rest wanted to acquit you."

First screw: "My girl got her nose broken in three places."

Second college student: "She ought to stay out of those places."

Auto demonstrator (who had been trying for three hours to sell the car): "Now, I'll throw in the clutch."

Scotch Rische: "I'll take her, then. I knew if I held out long enough, you'd give me something to boot!"

"Deacon Barling," said Dr. Bennett, softly, "will you lead us in prayer?"

There was no answer.

"Deacon Barling," this time a little louder, "will you lead?"

Still no response. Evidently, the deacon was slumbering. Dr. Bennett made a third appeal and raised his voice to a high pitch that succeeded in arousing the drowsy man. "Deacon Barling, will you lead?"

The deacon, bewildered, rubbed his heavy eyes and blurted out: "Lead yourself, I just dealt."

Smitty: "There is something going around that will interest you."

Scotty: "Be careful, there are some pins in my waist."

Miss Eagleton: "Johnnie, you should be ashamed! When I was your age I could name all the presidents."

Johnnie: "Yes, but there were only three or four then."

Kind Uncle: "My little man, you must not say, 'I ain't going.' You should say, 'I am not going. He is not going. We are not going. They are not going.'"

Ketchum: "Ain't nobody going?"

Joke Editor: "We can't accept this poem. It isn't verse at all; merely an escape of gas."

Don Walker: "Ah!— something wrong with the meter!"

McMurtray says not to buy thermometers in the summer; they're lower in the winter.

Lois Smith: "What makes the leaves turn red in the fall?"

Marshall: "They're blushing to think how green they've been all summer."

"Popeye" Caswell: "I calls my girl 'Flour' 'cause she's been through the mill."

La Verne Edwards says that her knees are so sarcastic they just knock each other all the time.

"Jimmy, I wish you would learn better table manners; you're a regular little pig at the table."

Deep silence on Jimmy's part.

"Jimmy, do you know what a pig is?" continued father, wishing to make his little reproof more emphatic.

"Yes, Dad," Jimmy replied, meekly, "it's a hog's little boy."

Molly Cassidy: "Shure, Pat, I had a certificate of character, but I lost it comin' over. Phwat will I do?"

Pat Murphy: "Niver mind, Molly, I'll write you another wan."

And this is what he wrote: "This is to certify that Molly Cassidy had a good character before she left the old country, but lost it coming over."

Two stewedents were uncertainly flivvering their way home.

"Bill," said Henry, "I wancha be very careful. Firs' thing ya know, ya'll have us ina ditch."

"Me?" said Bill, astonished. "I thought you were driving!"

"Hello, is this the Girl Reserves?"

"Yes."

"Well, reserve me a nice blonde for Thursday night."

She: "He's sure got hair on his chest."

Another She: "Who?"

First She: "The big, black wolf."

Turned out in the middle of the night, poor little electric light.

Jerry: "Did you get your hair cut?"

Norman M.: "No, I just washed it and it shrunk."

An Englishman just returning to London from a visit over here was much impressed with our slang phrase, "So's your old man." In telling his friends about it, he explained: "You know, they have a deucedly funny saying over theah when they question what you say—instead of sneering 'Fiddlestick' or 'you don't mean it, old chappie,' they say, 'Oh, hell, fawther is the same way.' Clevah, isn't it?"

Never before had they been alone. But tonight, somehow, the others had withdrawn and left them—two alone on the broad stretch of green. He had seen her before, of course, in the crowd. Few had not seen her and admired her incredible fairness. Once he had brushed against her—and the remembrance of the quivering thrill of that contact startled him anew. Could nothing bring them together? He hesitated, but she remained motionless—waiting—gleamingly fair in the pale light. Then an impulse, a power greater than he, impelled him to her. And she waited, as dark and shining, he drew near. They touched—and with a soft, whispering sigh, they kissed, and parted—each billiard ball rolling over to the cushion.

"What's the charge, officer?"
 "Fragrancy, your honor. He's been drinking perfume."

Sans Souci: "She calls him Moon."

Avolonte: "How come?"

S. S.: "Well, she sees him once a month, and then he's on his last quarter."

He: "Doesn't this dance make you wish for another?"

She: "Yes, but he isn't coming here tonight."

Daughter: "Father, dear father, come home with me now."

Pater: "I can't right now; your mother wants another drink."

Helen Holliday: "A little bird told me that you were going to propose to me tonight."

Richard Flippo: "That bird must have been a little cuckoo."

BULLETIN OF INFORMATION FOR REGISTRATION

North Texas Athletic and Military College 1933-34

6:00 A. M.—Get pulled out of bed by a returning Senior. Stand up at attention while he tells you just who he is.

7:00 A. M.—Go to breakfast and see if you can get anything to eat.

7:30 to 9:30 A. M.—Do all that you are told to do, such as carrying handbags, trunks, luggage, etc. Make up ten beds and sweep out three rooms. Go to the Exchange Store and get some elevator tickets and a season chapel ticket. Drop in at the Library on your way back and check out a copy of "College Humor," "Judge," and "The Police Gazette."

10:00 A. M.—Get at the end of the registration line. Stand in line for two hours and discover that you have to have a matriculation card. Rush out to the Commandant's Office, get the card, come back, get in line and stand until noon. Noon will find you the third man from the desk, but Mr. Bickel says: "Time for lunch." Break ranks, rush for dining hall, and again see if you can get something to eat.

1:00 P. M.—Get back in line. Work your way to the registration desk, accepting with pleasure all insults given by ladies and otherwise as a result of your pushing. Sign up for the courses that you absolutely refuse to take. Fix up your schedule and spend the next three hours in trying to find instructors to sign your card. As you sign up for each course, change your schedule to suit the head of each department.

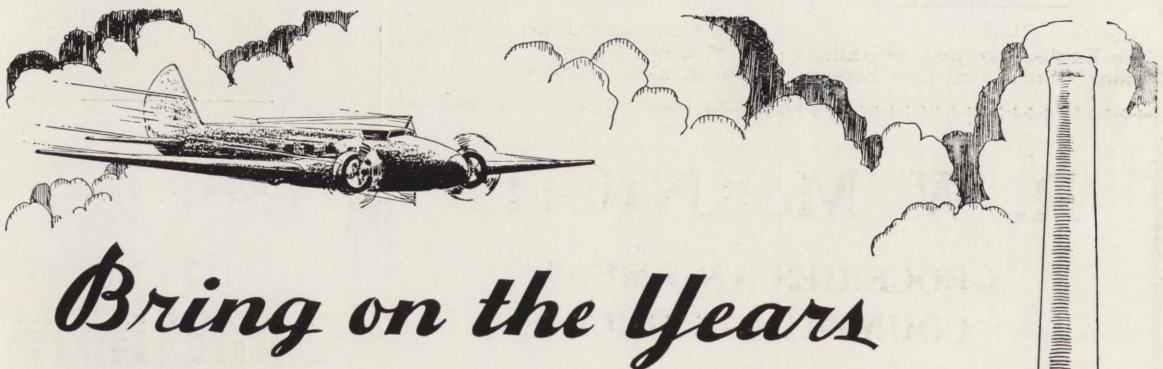

6:00 P. M.—Again go to the Dining Hall, and see if you can find something to eat. If not, go to "The Shorthorn" and get a ham on rye, or perhaps some green cheese would be more appropriate. Report back to your room immediately.

7:00 P. M.—Entertain all the Old Men, know each one personally after meeting him the first time and writing his name in your notebook. Stop all the boards, shoes, and brooms that you find flying carelessly through the air. Learn to sing, goose-step, dance, tell jokes, speak, juggle, and yodel, all in one night. The main thing to do is to act real smart and make all the wise cracks and sarcastic remarks about the Seniors that are possible to make. This always gets over big.

11:00 P. M.—Write a letter home and tell the home folks how brutal the school is. Tell them that you have already been made Corporal.

11:45 P. M.—Go to bed and sleep on your stomach.

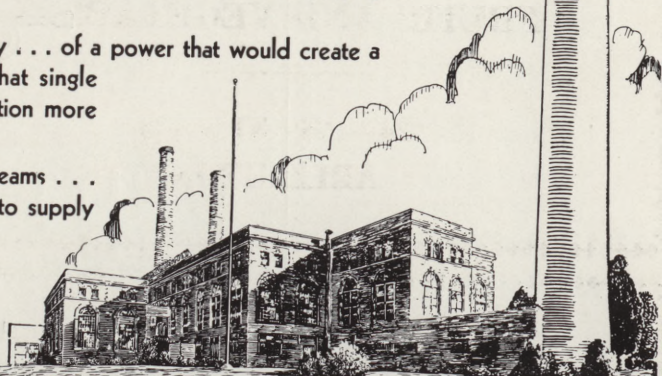

Bring on the Years

A short time ago we dreamed that people would some day fly. Today flying is quite the usual thing.

Before that, someone dreamed of electricity . . . of a power that would create a new and different civilization. Today, what single factor has influenced the whole of civilization more than electricity?

Bring on the years . . . dream greater dreams . . . Texas Electric Service Company is ready to supply dependable electric service when and where it is needed.

"Then why did father put that button in the collection plate?"

He kissed her rosy cheek
 Just merely in a frolic,
 But sad, sad kiss it proved to be
 For he died of painter's colic.

Mr. Hughes: "I'm afraid I'll never see you in heaven, my son?"

Young Bacteria Chaser: "What-cha been doin' now, Prof.?"

Hali: "My gosh! give me a camel!"

Tosis: "Here, control your animal instincts."

"Do you?"

"No."

"Then you'll have to get out."

So the good little girl got out and walked because the conductor would not let her ride without car fare.

Mr. Lambert: "I understand your wife came from a fine old family."

Mr. Dunsworth: "'Came' is hardly the word—she brought it with her."

Policeman: "How did you knock him down?"

Lucile McAdams: "I didn't! I pulled up to let him go across—and he fainted."

Mr. Hughes: "It's scandalous to charge us $10 for towing the car only three or four miles.

"Never mind, dear," replied Mrs. Hughes, "he's earning it; I've got the emergency brake on."

SENIOR PUBLIC SPEAKING

I entered the room with fear and trembling, for the night before I'd dreamed of an unsheathed sword. Goodness knows I wasn't prepared, and I could tell at a glance that Robinson was in an unrelenting mood. Evidently he had confused the sides of the bed upon rising.

When the roll was called, I answered to a name that certainly wasn't mine, and when the announcement came that the banquet was ready, I approached the big table with wobbly tread. Now I've already said that I hadn't made the slightest preparation, as is my custom, and I have no occasion to retract that statement. The only joke I knew was the one about Adam naming the 'possum, and the only verse I could recite was one from the middle of "The Cremation of San Magee." How I would apply these to an Armistice Day speech, and what I'd do for a middle, was beyond me. I heard the toastmaster thank the multitude for the honor they had bestowed upon him, and for the pleasure that was his, when in reality he'd rather be attending "Ten Nights in a Bar Room," which by the way is playing at the Old Opera House. I heard the speakers thank the toastmaster "For those kind words, false though they may be," and at last I heard my own name mentioned. I arose, in much the same frame of mind as the criminal who hears the hangman halloo, "Next!" I licked my chops, and trembled until my joints squeaked. I stood speechless. Finally I heard a voice telling of Adam and the 'possum. Gaining confidence, I bellowed a few such expressions as "Washington crossing the Delaware," "Blocks of ice," "Barefooted," "Blood stains," and "Big toes sticking out," mixed it all with a paragraph from Andy Gump, elocuted a verse from Sam Magee, and sat down.

When the last speaker had shouted, "To you from falling hands we pitch the torch," there was a moment of silence, and then the storm broke. Up spake Mr. Robinson: "Now I know how Antony felt when he delivered his funeral oration. If that was a banquet, I'd hate to attend a funeral, unless I were the corpse. That was almost the worst possible, and, gentlemen, you have satisfaction of knowing that yours was the dearest banquet I've listened to in the last ten years." And then he proceeded to pick the speakers to pieces by detail, until he came to me, whose speech he praised, dwelling upon the appropriateness of the joke and poem, and upon the effect of the dramatic pause. Then, after a few words of general admonition, that those who lived by the sword would surely die thereby, and that those who missed their work were such to perish, the class was closed in peace.

All of which goes to show that Mr. Robinson is a very intelligent gentleman.

THE BARBER OF SEVILLE or THE CLOSE SHAVE

(A Play in One Act)

DRAMATIS PERSONAE

THE ITALIAN, a prosperous looking banana salesman whose favorite writer is Dante.
HIS WIFE, a prominent figure (Wt. 279 lbs.) in the play.
ROSIE, rosy-cheeked blonde heroine. A knock-out.
GABRIEL, not of the horn-blowing variety. When the play opens later, he is the son of THE ITALIAN; he becomes a saint.
THE JUDGE, a man with two glass eyes, who once took a correspondence course in law.

THE JURY, usually made up of 12 men.
ANGEL, a prominent worldly-minded character who plays a leading role.
PROSECUTING ATTORNEY, a red-headed man with a villainous black beard.
GROUP OF SILENT PEOPLE, all men of course.
TIME: "Three o'clock in the morning."
SCENE: Who cares!
SCENE I
 (The setting is in a courtroom. As the curtain rises, the courtroom is silent except for the perpetual snoring of THE JUDGE and THE JURY. THE ITALIAN gets up and is standing before THE JUDGE and JURY, tearfully, aye, even pathetically, pleading for mercy from the cold-hearted JUDGE and JURY who have been snoring for lo! these six hours and a half.)

 The Italian—Ten years ago (sob) my wife, my two dear little fair-haired children, Rosie and Gabriel, came to America. For several years we prospered, and I was very happy, for I was planning to send my children to the North Texas Agricultural College, for it was my main ambition in life to make poor farmers of them both.

SHERIFF wakes up JURY and they take recess.
 Curtain. (Drawn by a mule.)

SCENE II

(We are still in the courtroom, to be specific, in a room with a desk, a full cuspidor, and some legal looking books, among which is last year's best seller, "The Shooting of Dan McGrew." THE COURT STENOGRAPHER has passed out long ago. THE JURY files in and immediately falls asleep.)
 The Italian—Then my wife died from getting too much spaghetti down her windpipe. A beautiful blonde angel came and bore her away. My Gabriel was a sweet boy of 17 years when his tragic, sudden death was from trying to pass an engineering course at N. T. A. C. The angel took Gabriel away. (The thirteenth juryman sobs in his sleep and THE PROSECUTING ATTORNEY objects to the use of emotional appeal. THE JUDGE suddenly awakes and overrules objection.)

Curtain. (Same mule).

SCENE III

(Setting is the same as in SCENE II. Nothing has changed, not even the air in the room. In other words, the play preserves dramatic unity. This makes the play a wing-dilly.) The Italian— (Continuing his heart-busting story): I became a day-laborer. Every day my Rosie, bless her heart, brought my lunch, until one awful day, she did not come. Finally, after an hour of terrible anxiety, one of the workmen brought word that a child had been run over by a car in the street. They advised me to go out there because it might be my Rosie. In the center of the GROUP OF SILENT PEOPLE I saw the body of my dear little Rosie, crushed and broken. I gathered her in my arms and cried, "Speak, darling! Say something to your old daddy!" My heart was nearly breaking with suspense. My brain was reeling, when after an almost interminable time, it seemed to me, her eyelids slowly opened and she looked at me sadly and said, "Papa, why don't you shave?"

Curtain drops of its own a-cord.

The Execution

A Short Story

(For the benefit of those who do not know what it is.)

From the cold gloom of his cell in the Death Chamber the doomed man watched the noose getting tied to the gallows. Would it never be finished? At last—at last it was!

The man who was to die walked bravely to the platform. But he felt a familiar feeling in his head. It was inevitable. He sneezed.

"You big boob," bawled the director, "We'll have to shoot this scene over."

Some men are born great. Some men achieve greatness. And some men just grate upon you.

Kissing a girl is just like opening a bottle of olives—the first may come hard, but it's a cinch to get the rest.

A man always chases a woman until she catches him.

A Short Story That Is Short

Most of the stories that are being written today are entirely too tame. Here's one, however, that will make a dog strike its father:

"Hands up!" commanded the masked figure to the stage-coach driver, pointing a couple of six shooters toward him.

"Not on your life! X$') #c! You ?-#%$," coolly responded the driver, and, like a streak of lightning, reached for his gun.

Another voice was heard.

"C. B.!" shouted his mother. "It's time for you to get up and get ready for school."

It pays to be nice to the people you meet on the way up, for they are the same people you meet on the way down.

A pedestrian is a man whose son is home from college.

Out West times got so hard that the hitch-hikers stood on highways and offered to go either way.

Do right and fear no man. Don't write and fear no woman.

JIM GOES TO COLLEGE

A Story of Realized Ambition

THE day broke clear and cool over the broad plains of West Texas, and the sun flooded its gracious beams down onto the X Bar Ranch. The day was indeed to be an eventful one, and as the cock sounded his last shrill call of morning the entire Smith (as in the cough drop brothers) household was all abustle. For it was on this day that their only boy, Jim, was leaving for college.

Jim had scarcely slept a wink the whole night. No, not he, for revolving in his brain were the many things that he was going to accomplish when he started his College career.

Neither did Jim's old mother sleep that night. She was sending her boy out into the cool, crool world, and he was such an innocent lad. She had intended telling the boy before he left for college that there was no Santa Claus, but such news to only a youngster of twenty-one summers would be too much for him to bear.

Jim arose from his bed, donned his new suit and shoes which had just arrived from Sears and Roebuck the day before, and went down to the last breakfast that he would eat with his family until the Christmas holidays. Jim's dad had already told the boy that he could not afford to come home before then. Old Tom Smith was a frugal man. His only resources were four hundred sections of land and twenty thousand head of cattle.

At the breakfast table the final instructions were given the lad.

"Jim," said his mother, "you air goin' out into the world to git yore eddication like yore Pap did. Just remember, Jim, you kin be the President of the United States effen you wants to be, becuz yore Pap's blood flows through yore veins. And son, effen it starts gettin' chilly don't you fegit to put on them red flannels, and effen you start lookin' peaked take a coupla teaspoonfuls of the chill tonic that you will find in yore satchel. Remember, boy, that yer old Mom loves you, and we are expecting you to uphold the honor of Old Cactus Center."

At these final words Jim heaved a mighty emotional sigh, causing the table to shake his old man's coffee out into his lap.

"Jim," his pap roared, "I ought to whale the devil outen ye fer that."

"Folks," Jim gaspiped, "I am going to make good. With what I have learned from my Lone Scout training I should easily make a corporal the first month or so I am at school. I have read several college books and I know just how to act. I am going to be a regular fellow and I am going to pick out a good Senior to room with me." By the time he had finished with the oration he had also finished his four eggs, two cups of Java, and his ten biscuits.

"Son, when I went to college I didn't have the opportunities that you are going to be able to have," heaved his Pap. "I have arranged it so you can have twenty-five cents per week for your spending money, but dern ye, because I am a-lettin' you have it ain't no sign ye gotta court them Arlington gals and spend it all."

With these final words of parting this Holy Three went arm in arm to the door where Jim kissed his mother, pap, and Old Ring, the family dog, goodbye. He was half-way out the gate when a faint and hearful low from Old Bossy, the family cow, told him that he had overlooked her. Tears of love welled up into his eyes. His heart strings tugged at his adenoids. Running back, he gave Old Bossy a long and affectionate embrace, then tearing himself away he picked up his bags, boarded the surrey and was off.

Jim arrived at N. T. A. C. with about four hundred other first-year gentlemen, all of whom had the same determination to make good that Jim had.

And, gentlemen, did they? I ask you, did they? Did they make Fish Corporals? Did they room with a Senior? Did everyone on the campus know them? Did all the Arlington girls go crazy over them?

Well, I THINK NOT!!!

A Word From the Deans

Dean Davis: The subject I want to talk to you about is this: "Taxation without appropriation is tyranny!" as my old comrade Pat Henry used to say before me. Now, this reminds me of a new joke I heard while I was on school business at Atlantic City last Christmas a year ago: It seems that a Northerner was riding through the West Virginian mountains and came up with a mountaineer driving a herd of pigs leisurely.

"Where are you driving the pigs to?" asked the rider.

"Out to pasture 'em a bit."

"What for?"

"To fatten 'em."

"Isn't it pretty slow work to fatten them on grass? Up where I come from we pen them up and feed them on corn. It saves a lot of time."

"Yaas, I s'pose so," drawled the mountaineer. "But, dag-glam-it, what's time to a hawg?"

And now what I am trying to say is this, but that reminds me of another recent yarn I heard while I was in Austin before the days of woman suffrage and prohibition which have been such a detriment to the educational system of the South and especially to the State of Texas: A Sunday School teacher asked, "Now, how do you suppose Noah spent the time in the ark during the flood?"

"Prayin'," suggested Willie.

"Fishin'," ventured Dick. "Humph!" grunted Willie contemptuously. "'Twould be fine fishin' with only two worms, wouldn't it?"

As I was saying, taxation is a matter which worries the taxpayers on January 1, but this reminds me of another joke which is particularly applicable here: A moderately fond father discovered his young hopeful reading a dime novel.

"Unhand me, villain," the detected boy thundered, "or there will be bloodshed!"

"No," said the father grimly, tightening his hold on his son's collar. "Not bloodshed—woodshed."

Now, what I am trying to say is that I hope you will all take to heart this matter of taxation when you come of age; and to pull a final pun on you, don't tax your brain too much on this subject.

Dean Dickey: Now the Dean has already said what I had in my heart and on my mind to say. This splendid speech of his reminds me of this little joke: A truly eloquent parson had been preaching for an hour or so on the immortality of the soul.

"I looked at the mountains," he declared, "and could not help thinking, 'Beautiful as you are, you will be destroyed, while my soul will not.' I gazed upon the ocean and cried, 'Mighty as you are you will eventually dry up, but not I!'"

The two Deans collaborate on the final phase of these epoch making speeches in extending each and every student a hearty invitation to drop in, any time, and have supper with them.

THE DASTARDLY DEPREDATIONS OF THE MAN WITH THE HALF-FACE OR THE PERILS OF GERALDINE

The clock had just struck midnight. It was dark as down the long stairway silently crept Geraldine, our heroine, she of the golden locks and brilliant blue eyes. She paused, for from the library came the sounds of rustling papers. A slimy noise also reached her ears, slipping then softly into the night. She went on. But she stopped amazed, petrified, stony, cold (for other Synonyms see the Dictionary), as a man with only half of a face stole dreepily by her. She stifled a scream, and the man did not see her, for his eye was on the other side of his ½-face. Fainting gradually, she slid down the stairs bumpily, and came to at the door of the library. Staggering to her feet, she stalked into the room and there, across the table, half of his face entirely slashed off, lay the idol of her heart, the man who

(I can't think of anything else so I guess I'd better stop.)

The Last Word

YOU have seen our work, and now before we go we should like to offer our sincere regrets for those things in the book which have not been to your liking. We wish to beg the pardon of those people whose names we have misspelled or failed to spell at all (there being no greater crime), or about whom remarks which did not please have been made in these pages. During this year, you have seen us tearing our hair; you have heard us bullying and nagging. Now we should like for you to know that in all our rushing, bullying, and seeming witlessness, we were merely doing our poor best to leave you a book that would be a lasting and enjoyable record of a year filled with pleasant memories. And we hope that in the later years of your life you may chance to glance through it and let your thoughts wander back to the memory of dear friends, and enjoyable years spent as an Aggie.

AU REVOIR

Time Long Past

Like the ghost of a dear friend dead
Is Time long past.
A tone which is now forever fled,
A hope which is now forever past,
A love so sweet it could not last,
Was Time long past.

There were sweet dreams in the night
Of Time long past:
And, was it sadness or delight,
Each day a shadow onward cast
Which made us wish it yet might last—
That Time long past.

There is regret, almost remorse,
For Time long past.
'Tis like a child's beloved corse
A father watches, till at last
Beauty is like remembrance cast
From Time long past.
