History
the Corps

The President of The University of Texas at

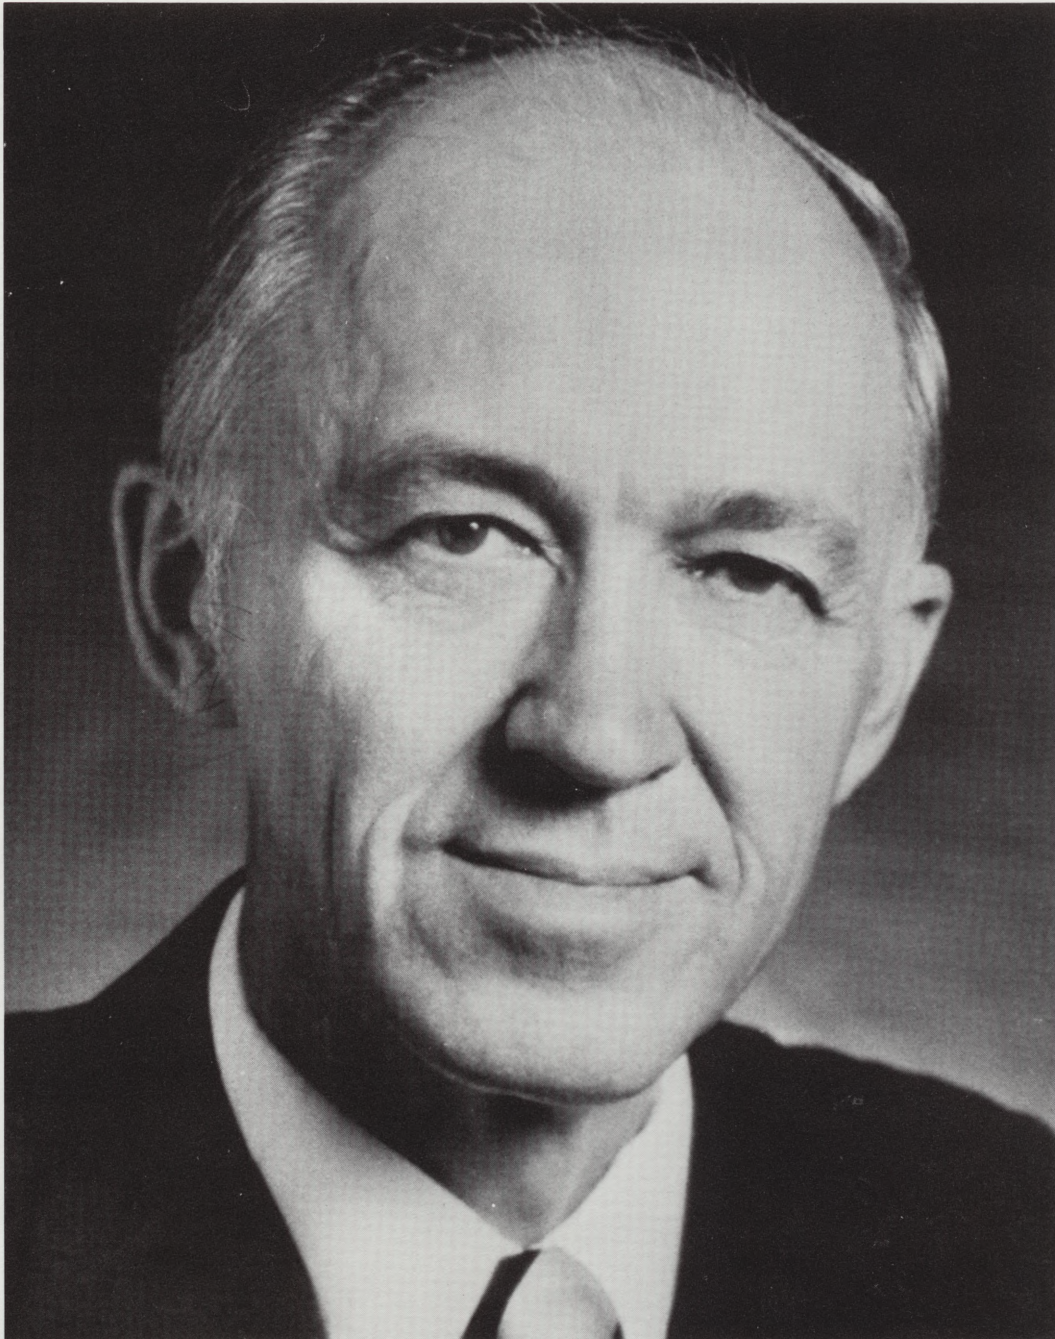

Since the inception of military training at this institution in 1902 when it was the Carlisle Military Academy, hundreds of outstanding young men and women have been prepared for service as officers in the U.S. Army. The ROTC Program as we know it today began when the institution became a part of the Texas A&M system in 1917. The college offered two years of college training and was known as Grubbs Vocational College. ROTC was mandatory for all male students of the college until the spring of 1954 when ROTC was changed to a curriculum. The cadets were an integral part of University life because the Corps was intertwined with most campus activities. This close feeling has continued even until today. In the fall of 1959 the University became a four year college and by the spring of 1961 the first class graduated with 8 officers receiving commissions. Since that date over 609 officers have been commissioned through the Arlington ROTC Program. In October of 1956, the ROTC unit was transferred to The University of Texas system. On May 17, 1968, Department of Army General Order Number 20 was published and formally established The University of Texas at Arlington ROTC unit as a separate Army ROTC organization.

Today, the Corps of Cadets of the University of Texas at Arlington is the second largest corps in the State of Texas. Its growth stems from a proud history and is a recognition and realization of its current excellence.

Message from the President

This book symbolizes the esprit de corps of the outstanding young men and women of the UTA Corps of Cadets. Our cadets excel in almost every area of activity and compete in an exemplary fashion at the national level. The Corps has a long and proud tradition of many decades on this campus. To this day, the Corps is upholding and building on this tradition in a way which brings great credit to the University. In addition to the specialized military activities, the Corps is integrated with and contributes to the general student life activities on our campus. The Corps also provides high visibility at many off-campus activities. We are proud of you and appreciate you.

I would also like to take this occasion to acknowledge the arrival of Lt. Col. Joel Ward as our new Professor of Military Science and as senior military officer on campus. His coming to UTA is historic in a sense in that for the first time we have an alumnus heading our ROTC program. We are looking forward to his tenure and we know he will continue the fine work of his predecessor, Col. Harry Candler, Jr.

W. H. Nedderman

PMS Message

Quality is the very essence of the Corps of Cadets. As your "new" PMS, I am deeply grateful to those who have gone before who have nurtured this quality and protected it. Quality is the unhesitating support received from our University and specifically our president, Dr. Wendell Nedderman. Quality is in the program with all the challenging, leadership-developing training and education and the extra-curricular activities that blend into that "something special" that no other cadet corps possesses. Quality is the professional cadre, the officers, NCOs and civilians, who have diligently given out their time and effort. Quality is also in the ever emerging cadet leadership that never ceases to surprise and inspire awe. And finally quality is in our proud cadet, who, in the simple act of putting on the gold bar, shoulders that special trust and confidence a nation confers only on its best and brightest.

As an "old" cadet of the Corps, this book permits me to share your pride as we grow better and stronger. Within these covers are captured some of those human events of the past year. Joy, pain, pride, comradeship, determination, frustration, and victory, they are all here. If you sense these feelings as you turn each page, then you understand the essence of the Corps. This has been a banner year with new directions. Our future is bright with unlimited opportunities to grow in new ways. University, Corps, and cadre, thank you for permitting me to share your pride in a tough job well done.

The University of Texas at Arlington Corps of Cadets Hall of Honor was established in 1980. The purpose of the Hall of Honor is to formally recognize those individuals who have made notably significant contributions to their community, University, Corps of Cadets, and country. Nominations are made by anyone who has information supporting the consideration of the committee of an individual who meets the criteria. The selection committee is made up of selected members of the UTA Corps of Cadets Advisory Committee and other distinguished University faculty members.
